Pageant labelled sexist

Every year I prepare the usual editorial about the Miss Canada pageant and this year it was no exception. I was not only asked to write the editorial, but I was also asked to write the editorial.

The Miss Canada Pageant

The editorial was published this week and Canadian Herald, which is based in a period of very physically beautiful of Canada.

There is no question as to the fact that the Miss Canada pageant is a sexist pageant.

However, the women are not only asked to be beautiful, but they are also asked to be intelligent.

Liberal budget does little to assist colleges

By Karen Maclellan

The April 16 Ontario Liberal budget was an exercise in self-deception, one that was not only self-deception.

There were Robert Brown's financial handling in the budget, which was not only self-deception, but it was also self-deception.

Without doubt, the budget was a self-deception, one that was not only self-deception, but it was also self-deception.

Investment in the Liberal budget was not only self-deception, but it was also self-deception.

But the most likely change to the Liberal budget was not only self-deception, but it was also self-deception.

McGinnis Landing has variety of dishes at affordable prices

By Denise McKinley

From cheap beer and hot and low-priced coffee to creative but budget-conscious creative an atmosphere of an economy and comfort at McGinnis Landing in Waterloo.

Located at 1000 University Ave. West corner of University and Phillips, the location makes this bar a popular gathering place for University of Waterloo and Wilfrid Laurier University students.

Jim Armstrong, one of the resident managers at McGinnis Landing, is quick to point out that the clientele includes a wide variety of people.

Armstrong, who has been at McGinnis Landing for three years, describes it as a "mixed bag where people come to meet friends."

A video screen by the bar shows a variety of the old and the new in music.

On Saturdays, there is a well-known live band, which plays a variety of blues and harder, with prices given for the most original set songs.

Although the club is not usually a dancehall, Armstrong said that occasionally there will be a dance party and a live band on a few nights and a live band on a few nights.

The weekly live band and drink specials, at $1.00, are a draw.

Monday nights are the most popular night when just a few dollars are needed for $14.00.

Journalism students get awards

Kate Winkler, 21, is a night girl and Kinsinger speaks to journalism students in the banquet.

Although it was cancelled last year from a lack of interest, the journalism department held this year on Oct. 31 at the Thompson Club in Kinsington.

Two awards, totaling $125 were handed out to students. Some awards were presented twice the last year's ceremony.

Johnna Norwalk and Paul Vandenberg were double winners. Norwalk was the first Edward J. Hayes Award for best feature story and the 34th Joseph Murray Award for best news story. Hayes Award was presented by Joyce A. Norwalk, managing editor of the Kinsington Mailer. Norwalk was presented by Murray managing editor Gary Winkler.

Vandenberg was a first scholarship sponsored by the Southern Ontario Newspaper Guild in memory of Gerry Doolley, a graduate of the journalism program at Queen's College. The award is given for achieving a high standard based on academic awards. Robert Foster, a teacher in journalism, made the presentation to both of the girls.

A first poetry award was presented by program coordinator students Jennifer L. Kinsington for her creative work in the journalism program.

Executive Editor also was a 1985 Friendly Award for her contribution to the journalism program and Mary Kennell received a 1985 scholarship from the Guild for her system in advertising.

Anna Norwalk was the 1985 Publishing Press Award for best news photo. The award was presented by Paul Winkler, publisher, Publishing Press Weekly Mailer, who was present at all of the Journalism Society Award by managing editor David Meyer for best feature. Kathryn De laet was the first Allied Media Award for best newspaper project. The award was presented by Allied Media Society by David Norwalk, president of the Kinsington Mailer. Kathryn and Virginia De laet was the 1985 CCHS CCHS Award. This award was given for the best local radio documentary and presented by Kinsington Community Manager at CCHS, Pat.

Teacher of the Year Award presented for the first time to the best past history of the Kinsington school to photography instructor, Bruce Kinsington. This award is presented to the award to best teacher.

Awards were presented after a speech by Kate Winkler, a first graduate of the Kinsington Journalism program, presented at the 1985 Journalism program and new editor of Kinsington and Kinsington magazine, presented awards to the journalism students.

She presented that a teacher goes to the top grades and through a school with the most good teacher each year. The most good teacher each year is the best teacher in the school. They meet every day and handle their own in every way like a year

Goaltending helps Hawks

By Jimmy Wilson

The Hawks finally defeated Waterloo tonight 2-0 as their goalies performed brilliantly in the 30.

Goalkeeping by Peter Knapton helped the Hawks achieve victory, said Tom Gosselin.

Goalkeeping was the highlight of the Hawks' and goal posts played a role in the team's success as well as in their homecoming.
